

ABSTRACT

5 A method and system for notifying router subsystems of configuration changes made to router configuration information which are maintained by a centralized information provider or database system. The centralized database provides registration and unregistration for notification of changes made to the router configuration information. The centralized database further provides router 10 configuration change notifications to subsystems registered to receive such notifications.